

The Challenge

Rivertrace Engineering has over 30 years experience of oil-in-water monitoring and an ongoing commitment to development which ensures their products remain at the forefront of technology. Prior to partnering with the University of Brighton, the operating range of their technology was not able to accurately detect and discriminate between a range of water contaminants, and the company compl#2hat